

PLAN TO JOIN ALL THE UNIONS

Fraternal Delegate Urges International Alliance of All Labor Unions in the World.

CAPITAL IS SCORED

Woman Representative for the Advancement of Labor Talks of Abuses of Capital.

Boston, Nov. 12.—Delegates to the American Federation of Labor evinced the greatest enthusiasm when the plan for an international labor federation was laid before the gathering. The proposition for an international alliance was made by James O'Grady, fraternal delegate from the cabinet-makers and upholsterers of Great Britain. He urged that the workingmen of the two countries work in harmony. James Simpson of Toronto, a member of the International Typographical Union, supported the plan.

Gompers Loses Overcoat. President Gompers caused some excitement when he announced that some one had stolen his overcoat. He did not care for the loss of the garment, but with it were taken some documents "which," he said, "might mean much to a poor fellow whom we have declared guilty of wrong, but who, if these documents got into wrong hands, may be imprisoned."

There was a fierce debate regarding the seating of the Bakers and Confectioners' International Union delegates, who were excluded by the convention when it adopted the report of the credentials committee. The trouble was precipitated by the receipt of a telegram from the Journeymen Bakers' Union of Cleveland, demanding the seating of the delegates, John Guild, Matthew Steele and Emil Shaerer.

Fraternal Delegates Speak. The three fraternal delegates, William Mullen of the British Textile Workers, James O'Grady of the British Trades Congress and James Simpson were presented and they made interesting addresses. Mr. O'Grady advocated the adoption of political action by the unions.

"We have taken a leaf out of the book of the glorious Irish parliamentary party," he said, "and by the force of united political action we hope to gain substantial advantages."

Laborers to Make Laws. Mr. Mullen described the effect of the Taft-Vale case on British unions, saying that as a result the labor men of England will send a great number of candidates to parliament, who will form themselves into a labor group and work on trades union lines.

Mr. Simpson said that when the recent decision of an international tribunal gave a strip of territory which Canada thought was hers to the United States it caused no ill feeling in the minds of Canadian labor men.

Capital Fights Its Mother. Miss Harriette Keyser, representing the church association for the advancement of the interests of labor, read the principles of the organization, declaring that the association had sixty bishops affiliated with it, and had been "the friend of labor when it was 'the under dog'." Capital to-day is fighting its own mother, labor, she said.

WOMAN KILLS HUSBAND WHILE HE IS ASLEEP

Fear That She Will Be Returned to Asylum Is Incentive to the Deed.

Dover, Del., Nov. 12.—Mrs. Edith Jackson Hollis, 25 years old, and a member of an influential family, killed her husband, shooting him while he sat in a rocking chair asleep. She then went to the home of her brother-in-law, Dr. L. S. Conwell, and told what she had done.

Mrs. Hollis says she killed her husband because he had planned to send her to an insane asylum. She had been committed to jail until a jury passes upon her sanity.

Several months ago Mrs. Hollis was sent to an insane asylum, where she remained for several months. A month ago, however, her relatives were allowed to take her home, the belief being that she was cured. Recently, however, she became violent and was placed under restraint in the home of her brother-in-law, Dr. L. S. Conwell.

At 4 o'clock in the morning she eluded the guard that had been almost constantly watching her, and, escaping from the house, made her way to her own home, where she found her husband sleeping in a rocking chair. Without disturbing him she drew a revolver from her dress and killed him.

Paris, Nov. 12.—Mme. Calve, in an interview today on the report that she and Mme. Bernhardt and Mme. Rejane were to form a coalition for the purpose of jointly leasing a theatre in Paris, is quoted as saying she recently proposed to Mme. Rejane that they found a theatre at which they would alternate in opera and comedy.

"There was no question, Mme. Calve added, 'as to Mme. Bernhardt, who does not need us and who would reject any such proposal.'"

Emile Bergerat has sold "Mme. Royale" to Sarah Bernhardt, who will produce the play shortly.

PLOT TO MAKE WAR ON TURKS

Bulgarian and Servian Officers Said To Be Implicated in the Same.

Vienna, Nov. 12.—A dispatch received today from Sofia, attributes the recent arrests of army officers to the discovery of a plot, engineered by Bulgarian and Servian officers to force a war upon Turkey, which was to be attacked by the combined armies of the two countries. The Austrian officials here have no confirmation of the story from Sofia.

The summonses that Captain Richmond Pearson Hobson secured in New York Monday for the appearance of three people to try and explain the disappearance of jewelry, money and one of his models have been dismissed. SIGNS OF THE TIMES. Sam—Yep; war's a terrible thing—fer them that's doin' the fightin'.

WILL REDUCE SALARY LIST

PAY ROLL OF BIG STEEL TRUST TO BE LESSENED.

A CUT OF FIFTEEN MILLIONS

Those Earning Large Amounts Will Be the First To Feel the Reduction.

New York, Nov. 12.—In the work of retrenchment which the officials of the United States Steel corporation have ordered and planned it is proposed to reduce the annual pay roll of the giant corporation about $15,000,000 or slightly more than 10 per cent of the wages paid last year.

At a representative meeting of all the important steel and iron manufacturers of the United States price schedules were ratified and approved. No further cuts will be made and it was agreed to maintain prices.

It also was decided by officials of the United States Steel corporation to merge the American Tinplate company and the American Sheet Steel company into one organization. It is expected that the consolidation will become effective about Jan. 1.

Headquarters at Pittsburgh. At the same time it is stated that Pittsburgh will become more than ever the steel and iron center of the United States, as the steel trust purposes to remove to that city practically all the operating departments of its several subsidiary companies. The tinplate and sheet steel offices will be moved to that city.

In its recent negotiations the steel trust has sold upwards of 150,000 tons of various steel and iron materials in Europe. To move this vast quantity of freight a reduction of freight rates has been asked of the railroads. The vessels of the International Mercantile Marine company will transport the goods to the other side of the Atlantic.

Big Cut in Wages. The proposed reduction in wages will be general, but it is the intention of the management to hit hardest at those earning the largest amounts. It is admitted that a reduction extending in some instances to 35 per cent will be made, but the average reduction will be about 10 per cent.

Last year the great steel corporation paid out $120,528,343 in wages. This amount was paid to 168,127 employees. Preliminary estimates indicate that at least $15,000,000 can be cut off this enormous amount.

The "aristocracy of labor," who have been drawing abnormally high wages in the boom times compared with the wages generally paid, will be the employees whom the cut will affect the most.

Not only will the workmen who draw weekly salaries find their pay cut down but so will the office men and the heads of departments. The work now going on, which will be announced shortly, has been termed "drastic retrenchment."

Peruvian Presidents. Most of the presidents of Peru have been soldiers. They have attained power by the aid of the army, and at the expiration of their constitutional terms have usually endeavored to continue themselves in office by the same means. They have been practically dictators, and their rivalries have kept the country in a state of turmoil.

No, Maude, dear; we have never heard that the flyleaf of a book was the best material for a kite.

BELOIT POLICE RECOVER GOODS

THIEVES LOOTED C. E. PAGE'S LAST NIGHT.

ROBBERS MADE THEIR ESCAPE

But Most of the Stolen Property Was Recovered Where They Dropped It.

(Special To The Gazette.) Beloit, Nov. 12.—Three Beloit policemen, Officers Whipple, Rohel, and Quammen, had a running fight last night with two burglars whom they discovered robbing the store of C. E. Page on the bridge. The police saw the men as they left the store and pursued them but were unable to come up with them. Several shots were fired, but in the darkness the thieves escaped. It is thought they boarded a train which left the city about that time.

Find Stolen Goods. After the fight was over the police began looking for the stolen goods and found many of them scattered over the roadway the thieves escaped by and also found some hidden behind a nearby barn. The loss would have been considerable as many valuable furs were taken from the Page store.

BAD WRECK ON KENTUCKY ROAD

SIX KILLED AND TWO INJURED IN A SMASHUP.

CAUSE, TWO TRAINS COLLIDE

Engineers Misunderstood the Train Orders, and Met Near New Hope.

(Special By Scripps-McLain.) New Hope, Ky., Nov. 12.—Through a misunderstanding of orders six persons were killed and two badly injured in a wreck on the Louisville and Nashville at four o'clock this morning when two freight trains collided while going at a good rate of speed just outside the city limits. The smash-up was a bad one and the two engines almost completely demolished by the force of the coming together.

The dead are; Engineers M. S. Cannon, Edward Sturgis, Moreland Graves and Foreman John Reynolds, John Leach and William Lynden. The trains were going so fast when the engines came together that the engineers and firemen were thrown from their cabs and caught in the wreckage and crushed to death. The other trainmen are missing and have not as yet been found by the wrecking crew.

MILITARY WRITER GOES TO PRISON

German Court Martial Dismisses Lieutenant from the Imperial Army.

Berlin, Nov. 12.—The military court at Metz today sentenced Lieutenant Bilson, author of "A Little Garrison," to six months in prison and dismissal from the army. The novel was ordered to be destroyed. The decision was based on the fact that the book insulted the lieutenant's superior officers and drew such a picture of events in Forbach, Alsace-Lorraine, that persons living there were compromised. The lieutenant also disobeyed an important order forbidding officers to publish any pamphlet without permission.

MILITIA EVADES ACTIVE SERVICE

THIRTY MEN USUALLY RESPOND TO PRESIDENT'S CALL.

DESERTIONS IN THE ARMY

Ten Per Cent of Men Enlisted Took French Leave During the Past Year of Service.

Washington, Nov. 12.—"Eliminating the men unfit for military service and those unable to go to the front for logical reasons, only about thirty of the original company is a fair estimate of the number of men in each company of state militia that were finally received into the service of the United States." This is the comment made in the annual report of Acting Adjutant General Hall. The statement was made in connection with the figures as to the militiamen who served in the Spanish war.

Evade Service. Regarding the dependable strength of the militia in time of national peril, the adjutant general states that "although the obligation of officers and men of the militia to respond promptly to a sudden call of the president has been on the statute books more than a hundred years and of the organized militia or national guard for nearly forty, and the neglect to so respond is punishable by such penalties as a court-martial may direct, experience has shown that this obligation is a theory rather than a fact."

STRENGTH OF ARMY.

The report shows that the actual strength of the army on Oct. 15, 1903, was 3,681 officers and 55,500 enlisted men. There were lost to the army during the year ended June 30, 1903, 29,279 men. Ten per cent, or 5,934 men, deserted. The total number of the organized militia, including officers of every rank and grade, was shown to be 116,542.

It is recommended that to increase the attendance at drills of the militia governors be permitted to use their allotment for the purpose of furnishing a per diem allowance, not in any case to exceed 43 cents per drill of one and one-half hours, for paying the men.

FIGHT SMOOT.

Many Protests Against Seating the Senator From Utah.

Washington, Nov. 12.—Several hundred petitions protesting against Reed Smoot retaining his seat as junior senator from Utah have been filed in the senate. Most of these were offered by Senator Burrows, chairman of the elections committee, though nearly every state registered objections through petitions filed by its senators. Churches, religious organizations, universities, colleges and other educational institutions have filed protests. John G. Carlisle, former secretary of the treasury, has been employed by the leaders of those who oppose the seating of Smoot to conduct the investigation of that case before the committee on privileges and elections. The large fee Mr. Carlisle is said to have demanded will, it is intimated, be provided jointly by numerous religious and semi-religious bodies.

Asks Aid for Exposition. Washington, Nov. 12.—In a bill introduced in the senate by Senator Mitchell the government is asked to appropriate $2,125,000 to aid in the celebration of the exploration of the Oregon county by Lewis and Clark.

O'BRIEN INSISTS ON RESIGNING

He Declines to Reconsider Even an Appeal of the Cork League.

London, Nov. 12.—William O'Brien has refused to withdraw his resignation as member of parliament, as requested by the Cork branch of the United Irish League. He says he wishes to leave his enemies free scope to carry on their opposition to his policy, and adds that he could not explain his reasons without publishing "horrifying details." The president of the Cork branch, in reply says he regrets Mr. O'Brien's refusal, and adds that the national cause is "tottering to ruin in the south."

POPE PIUS GIVES MANY BIRETTAS

Two New Cardinals Received by His Holiness in Private Audiences.

The members of the congregations who examined the Abbe Loigny's last book proposed to have it put in the index expurgatorius, especially on account of his interpretation of the bible.

FREIGHT COMBINE IS BEING SOUGHT

International Arrangement Suggested Whereby Vessels May Be Laid Up.

Liverpool, Nov. 12.—The depression in the sailing shipping trade is so serious as to have led to a drastic proposal on the part of Liverpool owners for an international combination, whereby a certain proportion of the sailing tonnage of Great Britain, France and Germany should temporarily be laid up, with the view to improving the freight market.

LOSES HER JEWEL BOX FROM SILK STOCKING

Package Containing $36,000 in Valuables and Cash Wears Hole Through Woman's Hosiery.

New York, Nov. 12.—Mrs. Frances Sterling says she has lost $35,700 in jewels and $300 in bank notes in an odd manner. She and Mrs. J. De Forest Frankel, a niece of Henry F. Gillig, arrived in Jersey City from Washington. In dressing Mrs. Sterling put her jewel box in her right stocking. The box is six inches long, four inches wide, three inches deep. The stocking is of silk and Mrs. Sterling permits it to be understood that she has subjected similar hosiery to a like strain before.

The two women crossed the Cortland street ferry, took the Sixth avenue elevated train to Thirty-third street and walked by Broadway and Thirty-fourth streets to the Powhattan. When they arrived there Mrs. Sterling discovered that the jewel box had worn a hole through her stocking and escaped.

The central office detectives are at work on the mystery, which contains these elements, among others: Would a box so large in one's stocking cause any discomfort? If so, how soon would its absence be noticed?

His friends believe that he has drowned himself in Lake Winnebago. Uecker also stated that he was driven to the deed by hard luck.

GREAT STRIKE ON IN CHICAGO

Street Car Men Went Out at Four O'clock This Morning—Strike Breakers There.

MEN ARE VIOLENT

The Strikers Injure Many of the New Workers and Derail the Cars.

(Special By Scripps-McLain.)

Chicago, Nov. 12.—The expected strike of the employees of the Chicago City railway began at 4 o'clock this morning. Night cars were operated until that hour when they were taken into the barns and union men quit.

Simultaneously with the "walk out" of the employees in response to strike orders, "Boss" Farley, the strike breaker, assumed de facto management of the system and put into effect his plans for the nonunion operation of cars on the trunk lines of the railway. Four hours later the first act of violence was committed when six trains started from the barns. They proceeded hardly more than a block when they were greeted with a shower of stones.

The first three trains managed to weather the storm, but the crews of the remaining three abandoned their cars and fled, bleeding from their numerous cuts to the barns. One was so badly hurt he was taken to the hospital. Other crews were placed on trains, one of which was a mail train, but they were stalled again by obstruction placed in the cable slot by the strikers.

Mayor Harrison has issued the following warning to citizens:

Citizens should keep off the streets—that is, they should not congregate along the street car lines where there is apt to be trouble. It is generally in a crowd of curiosity seekers that difficulties start. For their own safety and to avoid disturbances they should stay away from places where there is a probability of a riot. The street railway men have announced that it will be a peaceful strike and that the members of the union have been instructed to refrain from violence. Citizens should endeavor to make this possible.

SERIOUS RIOTING

One of the most serious of the early riots occurred at Clark and Van Buren streets near the heart of the business district. Four cars were held up and stoned. The police charged the mob and cleared the street, permitting the cars which had been badly wrecked to proceed. When the first car which had started out of the barns at 39th and Cottage Grove reached the barns on the return trip a mob of 1500 stopped them and refused to permit them to go ahead until the crews had agreed to quit the jobs. Another mob dragged the gripman and conductor off train near 47th and Cottage Grove and severely beat them, and put the train out of action.

COLOMBIANS DEMAND CHANGE IN GOVERNMENT

News of the Secession of Panama Arouses Citizens of Bogota Against Their President.

Washington, Nov. 12.—Revolution in Colombia may be the result of the secession of Panama. The first message from Bogota since the revolt of the isthmian states came to the state department from United States Minister Beaupre under date of Nov. 9.

The news of the secession of Panama apparently was received at Bogota on Nov. 8, six days after the event. The news, instead of inciting the people to anger against the United States, as has been feared here, inflamed the populace against the government of Colombia.

Minister Beaupre cables that on receipt of the news large crowds filled the streets, crying "Down with Marroquin." Troops had to be called out to clear the streets.

Later in the day a mass meeting denounced the president and called for a change of government. Hundreds gathered at the palace, and the orator, a prominent national general, called for the resignation of the president. The gathering again was dispersed by the troops, several people being wounded. There were no fatalities. The city has been placed under martial law and well guarded by soldiers.

The legation of the United States was placed under the protection of the government, but up to the time Minister Beaupre sent his message there had been no indications of hostile demonstrations. The residence of Lorenzo Marroquin (believed here to be a senator and son of the president) was attacked with stones.

The Indianapolis Sentinel was sold to a new company, of which Thomas Taggart will be president.

The company requires no additional floor space or track room in that quarter, according to those in a position to know, and is not buying property for speculation.

A BELLOWPHONE IN HUMAN FORM

Has Been Hired to Root for Michigan at Saturday's Game—Wisconsin Plays Against Fearful Odds.

Many a college foot ball game is won by the rooters. At least this is the common supposition. If so, the University of Wisconsin foot ball team plays against fearful odds at Ann Arbor next Saturday. Michigan has just completed arrangements for hiring a special rooter, said to be the most awful human bellow-phone since the days of Stentor, herald of the Illiad.

Hails From Chicago. The bellowphone is Frank Childs, a well known Chicago lawyer. Mr. Childs used to root at the West side ball park in that city and rooted with such terrific voice that he was finally pursued from the field, the players complaining that they could neither hear nor field with that fearful voice roaring in their ears.

Minnesota Shook. Mr. Childs attended the Michigan-Minnesota football game, took a fancy to the Michigan team, and proceeded to root for them. After he had emitted two roars the Minnesota line shook like a leaf, and his roar resulted in the Michigan touchdown. After the game Manager Baird, of Michigan hunted up Mr. Childs and made a contract with him. By the terms of the agreement he is to root to the Michigan-Wisconsin game, all expenses paid, to act as bellowphone and lead the Michigan rooters.

A New Experiment. The experiment of engaging a professional roarer is new in western foot ball and the outcome will be watched with the keenest interest. Wisconsin has a few days left in which to secure the state for a bellowing voice to offset this monstrous innovation which Michigan is about to introduce.

RAPID RISE OF RUSH D. SIMMONS

Washington Post Publishes Picture and Biography of Former Local Editor of Janesville Gazette.

In a page write-up of "the men behind the guns" of the postoffice investigation which has dragged its weary length through more than a year—the men who have stood loyally behind Fugate and Bristow and Robb and ground out results with unflinching zeal—the men who have ransacked letter-files, followed down back and forth across the continent on journeys that have griddoned nearly every state from Maine to California, making disclosures which involve hundreds of thousands of dollars in reckless expenditures and forcing thirty prominent people before the federal tribunal, the Washington Post in a recent issue devotes considerable space to Inspector Rush D. Simmons, formerly of Janesville.

Made Splendid Record. It says in part: "Inspector Simmons made a splendid record for himself in working up the rural satchel contracts, which led to the indictment of Machen, Stern, and 'Old' Long. He also worked on the cause of Mayor John T. Cupper, of Lockhaven, Pa., who was indicted for his part in the painting of letter-boxes."

Rose from Mail-Clerk. "Simmons was born in Wisconsin thirty-eight years ago and was a printer before he became a railway mail-clerk in 1889. On being appointed inspector he was assigned to Denver and afterward to the Kansas City division. He is one of the new first class inspectors called to Washington and has remained to the close. Simmons has done very fine work, and is conservative, methodical and accurate."

Here Ten Years Ago. Mr. Simmons came to Janesville from Lake Mills about ten years ago. His mother and a sister still reside in his old home. He worked for over a year in the Gazette office, serving for some time in the press and job rooms and for a considerable period as local editor. Prior to coming here he had attended Beloit college. He went to Madison, took the civil service examinations, and became a mail-clerk running between Racine and Chicago. He was later made chief clerk and afterward worked for a time in the Milwaukee postoffice.

SUTTER FAILURE IN MILLIONS

ATTORNEY RALPH JACKMAN, THE RECEIVER, HERE YESTERDAY.

MATTER MAY BE SETTLED SOON

Firm Has Valuable Property Throughout the State Much Interest Here.

While the affairs of Sutter Brothers, the tobacco firm, at present in financial difficulties are as yet in a chaotic state it is said by those in close touch with the concern that it is merely a temporary embarrassment which will be settled shortly and the firm will be able to continue its business as hitherto. In the past the Sutter Brothers have been extensive purchasers from the Janesville tobacco men but it is said that they were owing none at the time the receiver was appointed.

As stated in last night's Gazette Ralph Jackman, son of Mr. C. W. Jackman of this city, has been appointed receiver for the property of the firm in Wisconsin. Mr. Jackman was in the city yesterday investigating the holdings of the company here. He spent the afternoon among the tobacco men of the city and returned to Madison last night. In speaking of the matter he is quoted as saying:

The Statement. "Yes, I am in possession as resident receiver of Sutter Brothers, but as yet all is chaotic. I can give you no details as to the value of the property in my possession nor the local and total amount of liabilities. I haven't the faintest idea as to what creditors will receive."

Asked as to the cause of the failure Mr. Jackman said: "The company borrowed money on warehouse receipts and was not able to meet the loans when they fell due. The banks, I apprehend, would extend no further accommodation and the appointment of receivers naturally followed."

Publish Account. The Madison Democrat prints the following statement of the failure: "For a sum roughly estimated at $1,500,000 to $2,000,000, the firm of Sutter Brothers, incorporated, has failed and R. W. Jackman, receiver for the western district of Wisconsin, is in possession of the property in this vicinity. Other property is scattered over half the world."

Banks Interested. Madison banks are said to be creditors involved in the failure, which carries with it the Wisconsin Leaf Tobacco Co. The company is an Illinois corporation capitalized for $1,000,000 with headquarters in Chicago and branches in Amsterdam, Holland, Havana, Cuba, New York, St. Louis, and Philadelphia, and warehouses in Madison, Soldiers' Grove, Cambridge and Janesville.

Jackman Appointed. Simultaneously with the application of creditors in Chicago and elsewhere, Attorney Lamb, Richmond, Lamb & Jackman yesterday applied to Judge Romanzo Bunn of the United States district court for the appointment of a receiver for the property of Sutter Brothers in Wisconsin. Ralph W. Jackman was made resident receiver and immediately took possession of the alleged bankrupt company's property in Madison. Sutter's Green and Cambridge, possession taken and notices posted that the property was in the possession of an officer of the United States court. The Madison warehouse is said to be packed with bales of leaf tobacco, while at Janesville there is property valued at $50,000 to $75,000.

Another Failure. Crump Brothers, leaf tobacco, were forced into bankruptcy yesterday. The liabilities are $225,000; assets $150,000. The firm was intimately connected with Sutter Brothers, whose failure is said to have so injured the Crumps' credit that it was deemed advisable to go into bankruptcy.

FACTORY OPENED WITH OLD SCALE

Rosenblatt Overall Factory in Beloit Reopens Its Doors Without Wage Change.

Rosenblatt's overall factory in Beloit which has been closed for some time is open in some departments and the management has announced that the force will be further increased as conditions will warrant. The firm's contract with the Garment Makers' Union expired on November 1 and the factory is now a non-union shop. The management says that the old wage scale will be in force and preference will be given to old employees as the departments are reopened.

The Garment Makers' union last night held a meeting and the situation was discussed. It was announced that the Bartenders' union had voted $25 to the members and other aid is expected.

Two new railroad enterprises have been incorporated in California, each with $1,000,000 capital. One of these, running from Grant's Pass, Ore., to Crescent City, Cal., with branch lines, will have nearly 200 miles of track; the other is but thirty miles in length on the lands of the Diamond Match company. The Southern Pacific is interested in both lines.

LABOR TALK FOR WORKMEN

Gossip From All Over.

Organized labor in Chicago is beginning to feel the reactionary effects of the abnormal increase in wages it has gained during the last year. So heavy has the additional expense proved to the big firms that they have been forced to lay off 12,000 men, and are preparing to drop 7,000 more.

Reports of the discharge of employees reach the headquarters of the Chicago Federation of Labor every day. The most serious was the announcement that the International Harvester Company would reorganize its plant, and by centralization drop 7,000 men and women from its pay rolls.

Coupled with this news came a rumor that the Pullman company was contemplating laying off men, and that the companies of the various metal trades association are ready to take similar action. Should all this be done Chicago will have more idle men than at any time since 1892. A total of 11,800 men are now out of work.

The parent body of the labor organizations of Germany, the German Federation of Labor, with headquarters in Berlin, has sixty national unions affiliated with it, having a total membership of 732,206, and its local affiliated unions have 10,000 members, according to the most recent reports.

Eighty-five plans for the prevention of strikes, for the most acceptable of which the American Humane Educational society of Boston, Mass., offered a prize of $200, have been received. A committee has the papers in charge, and will make its award shortly and publish the prize winning plan.

Secretary Job, of the Chicago Employers' association asserts that the workman was never so well off as he is now. According to his estimates, the employee is receiving from 15 to 40 per cent more in wages than he was five years ago, while the cost of provisions has increased only 11.3 per cent in the same time.

The local union of the Retail Clerks' association has sued a merchant of Anniston, Ala., for possession of a union card displayed in his store. The clerks claim that the merchant kept his store open after the closing hour agreed upon and forfeited his right to the card. The merchant claims that the card belongs to him.

Eight hundred laborers, members of the Laborers' Protective union, of the American Federation of Labor, have quit work at the World's Fair, in St. Louis, because the men claim the exposition committee has not complied with an agreement made on Sept. 5th, when the question of employing non-union laborers was settled.

The committee representing some ten thousand trainmen, which spent several weeks in vainly endeavoring to secure concessions from the Pennsylvania railroad company, through General Manager Atterbury, left Philadelphia, recently. The committee will report the result of the conference to the various lodges, and the men will vote on the advisability of taking more drastic action. Possibly a month will be required to poll the trainmen who are employed on the Pennsylvania system east of Pittsburg and Erie.

MEN WORTH OVER QUARTER MILLION

Janesville, Edgerton, and Beloit Men Appear in Unique List Pub. Issued in New York.

In New York City recently was published a book containing 15,000 names, arranged by states and by cities and towns—men, women and estates valued at $300,000 or more. No doubt there are errors in it, but as it sells for $10, one may see it is a genuine effort to list such people. The theory is that these 15,000 people who are said to control $1,000,000, are investors, and so eligible for proposals of securities, etc. The Wisconsin list numbers a few over 300 names. Rock county is represented by the following men: Janesville—Carla, L. B. tobacco leaf merchant; Harris, James, barbed wire; Jeffris M. G., lawyer; Lovejoy, A. P., lumberman; Sutherland, Geo. G., lawyer.

Edgerton—Childs, 'H. W., tobacco dealer.

Beloit—Brittan, Walter M., banker; Morgan, F. W., fancy farm owner; Thompson, John, manufacturer, farm implements.

SPORTING NOTES

A part of the University of Pennsylvania players' daily practice is a "quiz" on the football rules. Later exercises in five yard lightning calculation will be in order.

"To one who has noted the progress of golf in its various phases since introduced into this country," says a veteran golfer, "the evolution of team matches cannot fail to prove interesting. What a difference in the contests of today from those enjoyable inter-club affairs of five years ago! Now these matches between rival bodies have resolved themselves into battles of from six to twelve of the best players in the club, who fight for each hole as if their lives depended upon the outcome. In the minds of many this is not the true spirit in which to engage in a pastime of the nature of golf."

"The greatest good to the greatest number seems the proper idea, and instead of bringing the membership of the teams down to small numbers of expert players the sport would have a much more beneficial effect if the members would turn out in greater numbers. In this way a healthier spirit of rivalry and a gently added interest in the game are bound to result. In some clubs the rank and file of the members never even dream of making the team. Not infrequently clubs become so worked up in their desire to secure strong teams that extra efforts are made to bring players into the fold."

"In many instances players of nearly equal ability have considered themselves qualified to make the team, and when one hunk the place at the expense of the other ill feeling crops out. On one occasion an old player who had gone off in his game for the time being and had been laid off the team was so incensed at his captain that he challenged the latter to a match. The match came off, and the captain won, which was probably fortunate for all concerned; otherwise all kinds of complications might have resulted."

"In many instances players of nearly equal ability have considered themselves qualified to make the team, and when one hunk the place at the expense of the other ill feeling crops out. On one occasion an old player who had gone off in his game for the time being and had been laid off the team was so incensed at his captain that he challenged the latter to a match. REGARDING THE HAIR.

Proper Care of It is a Toilet Duty Which But Few Women Seem to Have Mastered.

Next in importance to the complexion in effect upon a woman's looks is her hair. As in the case of the complexion, it lies largely with its owner as to whether it shall be attractive or unpleasing in appearance. This is not the view held by numbers of women. They think they have been born with hair of this or that character, and that they can not hope to change it. If it is curly they deplore; if it is straight and stiff they deplore; but they do not think they can get the better of nature. So, too, with the women of sparse locks. They mourn over the stinkiness of nature in this regard, but it does not occur to many of them to take simple measures for improving the quantity of their hair.

Many a girl who has sleepily and reluctantly given her hair the prescribed hundred strokes every night before going to bed would have rejoiced to know that it was one of the worst things she could do for her head. Where that hair-brushing theory originated it is hard to tell, but every woman has heard it, and nearly every woman has been foolish enough to do it at some time or another in the course of her life.

The office of the hair brush is to remove dust from the surface of the hair; to stroke down and smooth the snarls; and to distribute through the hair the natural oil that should be spread from the scalp.

Instead of doing this most women belabor their heads with the brush, dragging out and breaking off hairs in clusters, irritating the scalp and injuring the roots of the hair. Watch the average woman brush the hair, and see the vigor she puts into it. She is not satisfied with the brushing of the hair alone, but goes to the scalp, and brushes this as though it were a surface of metal instead of being skin fitted with a network of fine nerves. It is altogether possible that she uses a wire hair brush as an instrument of torture, thereby cutting off many hairs that the ordinary bristles would spare.

So far as keeping the hair and scalp clean, the best of women are as likely as any to be beginners. I have known women, tidy in other respects, who did not wash the hair once in six months. I have known of children 12 to 14 years old who could not recollect ever having been told of the necessity of shampooing the hair.

Their mothers kept the dandruff from accumulating by means of a fine comb! The women who do recognize the possibility that the hair occasionally needs to be washed as much as any other part of the body very often employ agents that are almost as bad as neglect would be. Women wash their hair with baking soda, with borax, with ammonia, with potash, with soaps of different kinds, with alcohol, with almost any lotion that is recommended by equally ignorant friends. These preparations are used also with a total disregard of the proportions in which any one of them should be added to the water for shampooing, or of the character of the hair or scalp to which they are applied.

ARTISTIC DECORATION.

Excellent Effect May Be Produced by the Clever Arrangement of Odd Bits of China.

The illustration suggests an artistic and completely satisfactory arrangement for turning a miscellaneous collection of china to eminently decorative account. Supposing the plates, jugs and bric-a-brac here shown to be of varied and strong coloring—or indeed, if they were of a blue color or any other uniform tone—a plain background is necessary to give them their fullest value. Accordingly they are ranged upon a narrow shelf, placed at the height of an ordinary picture-rail below a frieze disintegrated a pale danfodil-yellow. This shelf, it should be noticed, does not run straight around the walls, but is fashioned with bracket-like projections, on which jugs, vases and such like may stand. The wall below is spaced out with "slats," such as panels filled with Fabrikona or some other coarse canvas, which in this instance I imagine to be of a soft gray-green. The slats and moldings may be painted to match the green, may be white or in dull, unvarnished oak. If water colors, tinted engravings, silhouettes or small pictures of any kind have to be taken into account, the canvas left perfectly plain forms a charming background; if china alone forms the ornamentation, a simple stencilled design in tones of brown and olive-green, with perhaps a touch of warm Indian red, might be introduced in each panel with excellent effect. In any case, the china if well grouped, even though not of the rarest (though the more uncommon the better), will have fulfilled an entirely satisfactory purpose, considerably more pleasing and artistic than that to which "odds and ends" are relegated—the inconsequent adornment of the spare room, that universal "snapper up of unconsidered trifles." —The Queen (London).

Curious Superstitions.

A correspondent of the Field mentions a curious superstition respecting bees dying on the death of their owner. "I have been," he writes, "to the sale of the effects of a gentleman who died about a fortnight since. In the catalogue three stocks of bees were entered for sale, but when the man went to move them out they were all dead. This is the third time I have personally known such an occurrence."

Nature's War With Bacteria.

Bacteria are no respecter of place or personage; they go wherever they find a thoroughfare and a waiting vehicle. One of nature's unending tasks, at which she is busy every minute in the year, is the filtering of water for human use. When she has water for human use. When she has enough she makes a thorough job of it. When she hasn't the fever germs lurk in the old oaken bucket and lie in wait behind the faucet.

Wonderful Bird Flight.

The most wonderful bird flight noted is the migratory achievement of the Virginia plover, which leaves its Northern haunts in North America, taking a course down the Atlantic, usually from 400 to 500 miles east of the Bermudas, reaches the coast of Brazil in one unbroken flight of fifteen hours, covering a distance of 3,200 miles, at the rate of four miles a minute.

Cables or Dogs.

No one with the proper sensibilities can help a liking for some form of dog. It is equally true that a duly organized mind has always a fondness for some kind of child. It is not the fair thing to care so much more for the dog than for the child as to subject the human to the assault of the canine creature, either deliberately or from indifference to the luck of the baby in escaping the contact without loss of life.

Better Mail Service.

European mail can now be dispatched to the Far East by means of the great Transiberian railroad. Letters can today be sent from Paris Berlin or Vienna via Moscow to Vladivostok and Port Arthur in from twenty-two to twenty-four days, while the time required by steamer mail via the Suez canal route is from six to eight weeks.

Gone by a Quicker Route.

A Sloux City man drew all his money out of the bank, intending to use it in speculating on the board of trade. A burglar got to it first and the Sloux City man is lamenting. So far as can be seen the only reason the loser has for feeling sorry for himself is that the money went a little quicker than if he had carried out his original program.—Sloux City Journal.

Bridal Portions in Antiquity.

The women of Athens and of Sparta, excepting the rich heiresses, were not allowed to have a wedding dowry. The only things they were allowed to take with them when they were married were a few suits of clothing and some household articles.

Want Washermen.

New York laundry managers in advertising for new hands, now state: "No women need apply." Men who go out washing have been growing more and more numerous. The washerman, it is said, can get through more work in less time than the washerwoman.

Tall Corn in Missouri.

Corn is growing rapidly in Missouri. They are telling of a Jasper county man who saw a stalk shooting out of the ground so fast that he thought it was oil spouting from the earth and he forthwith organized an oil company and began to sell stock.—Kansas City Star.

Frank Brown and Frank Tracy were in Afton Wednesday and attended a dance given there.

NO MORE ROOM FOR CLASSES.

The average wage earner has made up his mind that he must remain a wage earner. He has given up the hope of a kingdom to come where he himself will be a capitalist and he asks that the reward for his work be given him as a working man. Singly, he has been too weak to enforce his just demands, and he has sought strength in union, and has associated himself into labor organizations.

The opening paragraph in John Mitchell's new book, "Organized Labor," is quoted above. The sentiment expressed may be consoling to men who have lost ambition, and there is doubtless an element in the ranks of the industrial world who believe that Mr. Mitchell's statement is correct, but it is false and worse than misleading.

The average working man is both honest and ambitious. If at all, he is not so soon discovers that the ranks of employers are constantly being recruited from the ranks of labor, and if at all thrifty he joins the army of men whose accumulation are steadily increasing.

The savings banks of Chicago have on deposit today more than $100,000,000 and the most of it belongs to the labor world. This amount is duplicated many times throughout the country, and there has never been a time when so many wage earners were making strenuous efforts to join the ranks of capital.

"The average wage earner" is rather a vague term, and while it is frequently used, its significance is not always appreciated.

More than 90 per cent of the adult population of this country belong to the ranks of wage earners. They are not a class by themselves, but they are the people enjoying the rights and privileges of the best land yet discovered, and surrounded by opportunities both rare and abundant.

Mr. Mitchell makes a very grave mistake when he talks about the industrial world as a class by themselves. This land recognizes no classes, and knows nothing about serfs and serfdom.

Every man is his brother's equal, and if he fails to make out of life as much as his neighbor, who started with no better opportunities, neither the world nor his neighbor is responsible for failure.

It is perfectly natural for Mr. Mitchell to assume the attitude expressed, because he looks at life from the view point of organized labor, forgetful of the fact that the great world of labor is not organized and that he only represents a fragment of industrial life.

The employers of Janesville represent less than 5 per cent of the population, and organized labor less than 10 per cent. These conditions are approximately true throughout the country.

Mr. Mitchell is the representative of a small minority, and he does this minority an injustice when he claims that its representatives have stultified ambition.

The time will never come when the ranks of labor will be largely depleted, because the large majority of mankind are more successful in working under direction than as independent artisans.

A great railway system stretches its lines across the continent, and every last man connected with the service, from the president to the train boy, is an employee, responsible not to himself but to a higher authority that furnishes him employment.

While it is popular to denounce the Rockefellers and Morgans, yet it is a blessed good thing for the country that these men are enrolled as citizens.

It requires some brain and some intelligent executive ability to keep a handful of men employed, but the man who possesses the nerve, the disposition, and the ability to employ an army, is endowed with a gift as rare as it is valuable.

Organized labor is being taught some valuable lessons in the hard school of experience. It will occupy its normal position in the great world of industry when it ceases to regard itself as a class, and joins the great mass of humanity who toil every day for a living, and competency, if they can acquire it, in the great open shop which is as broad as the land itself.

BAENSCH FOR GOVERNOR
For the past few days the name of Judge Emil Baensch, of Manitowish, has been freely used as a candidate for governor. Judge Baensch will be remembered as Lieutenant governor under the Scofield administration.

He is a German American 46 years of age, and enjoys the respect and confidence of a large circle of friends throughout the state.

He is a native of the state, and a graduate of the state university. A man of genial disposition and scholarly attainments, possessing executive ability and experience in public affairs.

A strong argument advanced in favor of his candidacy is the fact that he has not been strongly partisan in the factional fight which has disrupted the party during the past few years.

It is generally conceded that Gov. La Follette has no claim on the office for a third term, and that whatever may be his political ambitions for the future, that they should not be considered in connection with the office of governor.

The sentiment is also growing that the party should get together on some common ground and prepare for the national campaign next year.

The Gazette believes that the candidacy of Judge Baensch may be made to solve the problem. There is no reason why the party should not unite on some man, in fact there is every reason why this should be done.

The republican party not only in the state but throughout the nation, should be a unite. While the issues of the next national campaign may not be very pronounced, the outlook indicates that democracy will be recognized and party lines more closely drawn, than for many years.

The interests of the country are involved and every republican believes that the welfare of the nation is more intelligently guarded under republican than democratic rule.

Wisconsin republicanism has become a by-word, on account of internal strife, and the rank and file of the party, regardless of prejudice, will hail the day when the party can get together, and work as a unite. If Judge Baensch can solve the problem of harmony his candidacy should be encouraged.

THE PANAMA SITUATION.
The Wall Street Journal sums up the Panama situation so completely, that the article is worth reproducing.

The paper says:
It is sincerely to be hoped that no flaw will be discovered in our relations toward the Panama revolution. This is all the more to be hoped because whatever we may do will be acquiesced in by every great power of the government. The matter is left entirely in our hands. If we recognize the new republic the other governments will also do so.

Thus far there has been no false step made. The default recognition of Panama was absolutely necessary. There must be some government, and at present the only fact recognition does not necessarily imply full political recognition, though that may come later.

What makes the affair so delicate is that our honor is in no small measure involved in the sight of the whole world. The United States desires to build the Panama canal. It sought to obtain the right to do so from Colombia, whose authority extends over Panama. Colombia has rejected the treaty providing for the canal. She is seeking to force this country to make a large payment for the privilege. If Colombia were an individual, or a board of aldermen, instead of a nation, it might be said that she was trying to hold up or blackmail this country into paying an exorbitant sum for the canal rights. Very little sympathy will be wasted upon Colombia for what has happened. She deserves what she has got. Moreover, there will be much sympathy with Panama, the interests of whose people are so largely involved in the construction of the canal.

But all this makes our position all the more delicate. There must be no suspicion of sharp practice on our part, no doubt as to our absolute freedom from any part in fomenting the revolution, in order that we might treat with the new government for the right to build the canal.

Those, however, who are hastening to criticize the administration at Washington will do well to take a sober second thought. In no other respect has this administration made a more honorable record than in the conduct of the international relations. In this respect it is not open to criticism in the least. President Roosevelt and Secretary Hay have earned the admiration of the world for their frank, clear and honest diplomacy. It is safe to say that their hands are clean of any complicity with the revolution, and it is to be hoped that none of our citizens are involved.

The department stores of New York City spend $4,000,000 a year in newspaper advertising. They have discovered that publicity is necessary to success, and that the newspaper is the most effective medium.

There are merchants in Janesville who don't spend four dollars a year, and then wonder why they don't succeed.

The Post Check currency bill will be crowded to the front at the present session of congress. It is a practical measure and should pass without opposition. The only prominent opponent is a treasury department official, who seems to have forgotten that he is a public servant, elected to carry out the wishes of the people.

The new republic of Panama, will solve the problem of the isthmian canal. Colombia was too grasping and as the result loses her identity. President Roosevelt is to be congratulated on the stand taken. His action will be endorsed by public sentiment, and democracy will find opposition a weak support for an issue.

TARIFF ECHOES.

Uncle Sam had the very comfortable "cash balance on hand" September of $389,417,184.

The makers of platforms do not seem to be turning out any free-trade planks these days.

Just how to straddle on the tariff question and make a bid for the labor vote puzzles the most astute demagogue.

Another 6,000,000 and more was sliced off the public debt during September.

The next holiday will be Thanksgiving, and what a bounteous Thanks giving it will be if we return thanks for all the great multitude of blessings protection has brought to us.

The free trade press is out of all patience with this never ending prosperity. There is not an argument against Protection in sight.

The firm which is spending half a million dollars in advertising one brand of cigars evidently believes we are going to "stand pat" for a year or two longer.

We cannot blame those million foreigners who want to get in under our protection roof every year, but "if it keeps up, even protection itself will want protection." — American Economist.

The year's crops are now safely housed and the return to the farmer will equal if not exceed any other year in our history. The value of farm products are over $1,000,000,000 more than in 1896. That is what protection gives to the farmer in addition to nature's own munificent gifts.

PRESS COMMENT.

Omaha News: Parisians are having deadly riots. The officers should induce them to fight duels, which would not end so disastrously.

Oshkosh Northwestern: The plan of Senator Quarles for increasing the pay of rural mail carriers is recommended from all parts of the country.

Chicago Record-Herald: Tom Johnson blames Mark Hanna for his (Tom's) defeat. He will probably have little trouble in getting Mark to agree with him.

Buffalo Courier: It is reported that for the first time in several years Thomas C. Platt did not go to Oswego to vote. Perhaps his new boss is not an "easy" boss, and it may be that she wouldn't let him.

New York Evening Sun: In the matter of elections the average man with theories as to the result learns nothing and forgets nothing. Hence some absurd bets.

Chicago Chronicle: Paris announces that the short skirt for street wear is not to be fashionable this winter. Which means that the market for woolen fabrics is long just now and the surplus stock must be worked off. To degrade woman into a sweeper of filth and snowy slush is the easiest way.

Chicago Chronicle: The auto scorchers of this city are preparing a new campaign against the ordinance restraining their speed. The fate of Margaret Bohan, aged 1 year, knocked out of her little carriage by a Manhattan scorching and killed before the eyes of a frenzied multitude will not add force to any petition for greater auto license.

New York Telegram: It is an interesting fact that the name of a single survivor of the war of 1812 now appears on the pension rolls, that of Hiram Cronk, of Oneida county, in this state, who is 103 years of age. But no fewer than 1,115 widows of the soldiers in our second war with Great Britain are still getting money from the federal treasury. Young women who are willing to marry aged warriors, with the hope of pensions, are plentiful. Long after every man who bore arms in the Mexican war, the civil war and the Spanish war has drawn his last breath, there will be a host of widows still obtaining pensions.

Opium Smoking in France. For some time past doctors in France have been warning the public against the dangers of the latest craze—opium smoking. The habit has been introduced by officers and others home from Indo-China, and gradually extended to society at Marseilles and Toulon. After being adopted in other seaports, the mania has now reached Paris, where it is reported to have widely spread.

T. H. McGahan Tells How Father John's Medicine Cured Him of the Grip.

Alderman T. F. McGahan, of Amsterdam, N. Y., writes: "Father John's Medicine is the best medicine I ever used for grip, bronchial trouble and as an appetizer. I have recommended it to many here, and they all report the same success. I gave it to my little girl, who was for over two weeks nearly choking with bronchitis. She was relieved at once, and after taking two bottles was entirely well." (Signed) T. F. McGahan, alderman, 15 Forbes St., Father John's Medicine cures grip, colds, bronchitis and asthma—has for fifty years. It is all pure nourishment and builds up the body at the same time it cures the disease. No weakening stimulants, morphine, or other poisonous drugs, upon which so many patent medicines depend for their temporary effect, and which are dangerous. Father John's Medicine is on sale at the Badger Drug Co.

SOCIETY HOLDS AN INITIATION

GIRLS' CLUB AT HIGH SCHOOL IS ENTHUSIASTIC.

ARE TAKING IN MEMBERS

At Recent Ceremony, an East Side Gentleman Tries to Assist in Rites.

The Greek letter fraternities and secret societies hold an important place in the social life of the various high schools. There are as many as a dozen in some of the schools, and although Janesville has not as large a number as this, there is one very flourishing secret order among the girls; the Laurean is the name by which it is known. About twenty-five members respond to the roll-call, among whom seven are freshmen.

Recent Initiations
There are many stages a humble "pledging" must pass through before being fully initiated into all the mysterious rites and made sharers of the privileges of the organization. A few days ago a number of the freshmen appeared at the high school with their hair combed straight from their faces and brushed plainly back, while strange inscriptions were pinned snugly on their backs, and it was noticed some of the dresses seemed to fit in the most peculiar fashion, making one question whether they were looking at the back or the front. Many wondered if these were the latest styles and missed the pretty, fluffy pompadours and the soft curls, doubting if these could be the same girls with their hair worn in this demure fashion. This was only the first stage or the first degree, however. The real ceremonies did not begin until some days afterward.

Tried to Help
One cold stormy night of last week, just the night for witches to cast their spells and dark deeds to happen, a gentleman was walking home when he saw in the darkest corner of the park, at the top of the hill, a young girl sitting in the gutter. This kind-hearted gentleman, noticing her forlorn attitude with her head bowed on her knees, and thinking she might be ill, inquired what the matter was, and if he could be of any assistance. As she raised her head to answer him, he saw that she was blindfolded, and at that moment merry laughter was heard and her captors appeared, but instead of hard-hearted ruffians they proved to be a bevy of girls, and it was explained that this was only an initiation.

What Sometimes Happens
What took place indoors after reaching the home of one of the girls is a mysterious secret known only to the members of the society, but some know how unbecoming a wet glove feels when filled with sand, and the unpleasant taste of quinine when mixed with soap, and can, perhaps, picture the sufferings of the captive among her light-hearted tormentors, but hope that the thought of the "spread" which was to follow afterwards bore her through the ordeal safely. The next initiation will take place the last of this coming week at Miss Julia Lovejoy's, the ceremonies to be followed by an elaborate banquet.

Advantages of Some Clubs
Some will ask what is the good of all this, won't it cause hard feeling among the rest who are not asked to join, but the members of all this and like societies will be enthusiastic and say that they are the finest thing in the world. They are not merely members of a club, but all "sisters," and that when they take the final pledge of the sorority, they promise to be loyal and true to each other through "thick and thin;" that a society of this kind develops unselfishness and kindliness, binding all in a firm friendship, which will last, perhaps growing stronger, all their lives, and will at any rate be one of their happiest memories to look back upon in later years.

THROUGH FIRE AND TRAIN WRECK

Janesville Boy Has a Narrow Escape in the Buckeye State.

A well known Janesville boy, Roy Eddy, recently returned from Ohio and tells of some varied experiences which he passed through while in the Buckeye state. He left for Columbus a short time ago in company with his brother-in-law, and entered a hospital to undergo and operation on his back. While recovering from the sick ward, fire broke out in the building in which he was, and he barely escaped with his life. After this he started for home and the train he was on left the rails near the city of Mansfield in Ohio, and another narrow escape was recorded so that the Janesville boy was glad to get back to the Bower City after his many unwelcome experiences.

From Senator Chauncey M. Depew Wallace Bruce is a poet of international reputation and a lecturer constantly in demand all over the United States on literary and social topics.

WORK PROGRESSES NICELY THROUGHOUT BOWER CITY

Captain Hilborn Is Well Pleased With Results of Rent League.

Captain Hilborn, who has charge of the Salvation Army work in Janesville, is much pleased with the liberal contributions of the citizens in his proposed rent league. Thus far a monthly sum amounting to nearly ten dollars has been subscribed and this will be used in paying the rental for a hall where the meetings can be held. Captain Hilborn also reports that Janesville people buy more War Crys than any other town in the district. This is a great aid to the captain as he secures a stamp with every twenty-five sold, four hundred of which will entitle him to a free trip from New York to London next May when the grand meeting of the Salvation Army leaders is to be held in the Crystal Palace there. Mrs. Hilborn was called to her home in Racine last night by the serious illness of her father.

A GOOD GAME FOR SATURDAY

Bower City Boys Will Line Up Against the East Side Milwaukee High School, at Athletic Park.

In spite of the hard luck tales which the East Side Milwaukee high school has been springing in the papers, Coach Norris believes that they will come to Janesville with a pretty good team and that the Janesville boys will have good material to win from and clear away the defeat of last Saturday.

The game will be called at two o'clock in order that the Cream City team will be able to return home before evening. It is expected that they will bring a small delegation of rooters with them. If Janesville sends them home defeated, Fort Atkinson will practically be champion of southern Wisconsin, but if the orange and black is victorious, then the Fort eleven will be obliged to line up against the Milwaukee aggregation before they can claim the coveted title.

The statement given out at the last game and after it, that the band which played at the park was from Fort Atkinson was a grievous error and did not only the bandmen but the local players an injustice. The music was strictly a Bower City product and was doubtless recognized as such by those present by the superior playing. The Janesville high school should certainly have the credit of getting the musicians together and not the victorious team, who possibly got more than was coming to them. The mistake was probably caused by the band appearing simultaneously with the rooters from Fort Atkinson.

NARROW ESCAPE ON SOUTH MAIN ST.

An Electric Car Crashes into Buggy—Occupants Thrown to the Ground.

When Miss Margaret Rooney and her brother, John Rooney, tried to cross the street railway tracks on South Main street last evening, the buggy in which they were riding was struck by car No. 12 in charge of Motorman Louis Wiggins and the occupants of the rig thrown to the ground. The accident occurred at 6:30 o'clock and the car was moving with sufficient momentum to completely demolish the buggy and throw Miss Rooney to the ground. Both were seriously bruised, but consider themselves fortunate in not being killed.

Mr. Rooney was driving and started to cross to the other side of the road. When the buggy was squarely on the tracks, he saw the car bearing down on them and tried to hasten the gait of the horse. The sudden jolt broke a portion of the harness, and the track could not be cleared in time to prevent the crash. He claims that if the motorman sounded the bell it was not heard by the people in the rig. The motorman stated that when he first saw the horse turned on the track, he believed that there would be sufficient time to cross. When he saw that they could not make it, he applied the brake, but the wheels appeared to be exceedingly slippery and did not prevent the car from striking the rig. The vehicle is a complete wreck and was only recently purchased.

BIGGER YIELD THIS YEAR

FARMERS TALK CORN AND CONDITIONS.

CROP BETTER THAN EXPECTED

Some Claim They Are Disappointed in Yield Which Promised Better, Earlier.

Corn is turning out much better than was expected early in the summer and although a few farmers in this locality say that the yield and quality is poor, grain buyers say that there are always some kickers for every kind. "The crop this year would have been the biggest Rock county has ever seen, but for the lack of development at the last," said a prominent grain buyer today, "and the yield will go ahead of last season, anyway."

Uncertain Condition
Some of the local buyers have had rather hard luck with the new crop thus far. One man shipped several cars to Chicago and was unable to sell it and another bought several different lots and piled them in the bin. When he sold the greater part of it and came to the lower layer he found the corn kernels covered with fuzzy white stuff, which is an unwelcome visitor in every grain bin.

Some Experiences
One Rock county farmer stated that his own crop had turned out considerably better than he had expected before husking so far as quality and yield went and that he believed a number of men in this section had the same experience. Another man said that he had a fine lot of corn, so he thought, earlier in the fall, but that when husking time came he found out his mistake.

Better to Feed
Numerous reasons are given for the lack of development of the corn during the latter part of the growing time and the sages who gather around the stoves in the country stores, give out many and varied reasons in explanation of the crop's condition. It is thought that most men, who have any quantity, will keep it on the farm and feed it out as its selling qualities are poor this fall.

Storming of Mission Ridge

November 25, 1863

A FORTIETH ANNIVERSARY WAR STORY

(Copyright, 1903, by G. L. Kilmer.)

THE storming of Mission ridge Nov. 25, 1863, was a most dramatic war event and one to deeply impress the imagination. Chattanooga's peculiar location, a valley with encircling heights, was a scene adapted to spectacular display. Confederates on the heights and Federals in the valley and on opposing hills could witness every movement of friend and foe. The fortified ridge suggested terrors if it did not hold them, so the element of danger was not lacking. Neither was the daring to face the dangers lurking in the boys in blue, who had the uphill end of it. Phil Sheridan was the stage hero of Mission ridge, looking at it on its theatrical side. Of course it was no opera bouffe occasion. There were the Confederate heights crowned with real wide awake battalions and real loaded guns to be taken by the fellows down in the valley. Grant had given orders to Thomas and his generals to lead their men through shot and shell to the base of the mountain and await further commands. When the soldiers reached the base they halted for breath, but panted for the glory or the satisfaction of going to the very crest. They went to the crest, much to the surprise and the annoyance as well of the general in chief, without full authority.

Now, in a battle crisis soldiers can't be sticklers for red tape routine. They look to their immediate superiors for points, and under some impulse never yet explained the men of T. J. Wood's division led off in concert and began to climb the hillside. Soldiers often come to the state of not knowing when to stop, even though going ahead means death. But Wood's soldiers do not admit of impulse alone as the inspiration for their unauthorized charge to the summit of Mission ridge. They received tacit orders, and the credit is given to Wood of having said something to set the fun a-going.

Sheridan's division joined that of Wood on the right flank. His men came to a dead halt at the base of the ridge, as ordered to do by Grant and Thomas, and one brigade even began to retreat from the base under the galling fire poured on them from above. Little Phil was acting as officer of the day of the army and appeared on the field dressed in full uniform. Every soldier knows the contrast between a general's dress uniform and the plain garb worn in camp and on the field ordinarily. Sheridan rode down the line to bring his weakening brigades into shape and as he did so dropped a few words for the ears of the soldiers passed on the way. The men understood the spirit of their leader.

Two out of three of Sheridan's brigades netted upon the hints of their commander and followed the example set by Wood's soldiers. They went up the hill, leaving Sheridan in the rear looking after the laggards. As soon as this rush of Federals began the Confederates upon the crest set to work in earnest and fired or hurled or rolled everything heavy and hurtful which they could lay their hands on down the slope. Sheridan found the foot of the slope a hot place to tarry, so he rode for the crest, making for the headquarters of the Confederate commander. He posed as a conspicuous target, and when he leaped his charger, Renzi, over the parapet one of his colonels, who had been up there some time with his troops, hastened to the general and begged him to dismount. Sheridan did so and saved his life, for the bullets flew too thick to miss a man on horseback.

Before the charge began Sheridan had waved a pocket flask in full view of some Confederate officers near Bragg's headquarters, saying merrily, "Here's to you!" The response to this toast had been a couple of shells aimed at Little Phil from two guns known as the Lady Breckinridge and the Lady Buckner. There was a sharp battle over these guns between a brigade of Ohioans and their defenders. The One Hundred and Twenty-fifth and the Sixty-fifth Ohio together cleared the battery. Each of these regiments claimed to have placed the first flag on the works. However that was, they had done the more important part of the business so thoroughly that when Sheridan rode to the spot the few Confederates remaining undisarmed turned the butts of their muskets toward him in token of complete surrender.

Thomas' troops rushed up the sides of Mission ridge and over the enemy's works with an enthusiasm rarely seen in modern armies. One strong incentive had been given in the failure shortly before this magnificent charge of an attempt by Sherman's army to capture Tunnel hill, a detached part of the ridge. General Thomas declared that he saw six regimental flags of his army planted simultaneously on the Confederate parapets. More followed quickly, for there was an exciting race between the regiments to get their banners to the top first.

One of Sheridan's soldiers who was present that day in the ranks of the One Hundred and Twenty-fifth Ohio says that Sheridan passed along the line of the regiment on his way to the left flank to spur up the men, who seemed to be giving way after the capture of the works at the base of the hill. Seeing the eagerness of the Ohioans to press onward in spite of orders, he said to them: "It's all right, boys. When you get your breath you may go on again."

The word was passed along, and the regiments nearest the general immediately started up the slope, aiming for the works crowning the very crest. Many officers seized the flags of their regiments and rushed ahead of the line.

Loud cheers from distant parts of the line greeted the audacious charge of Wood's and Sheridan's soldiers, and at last the officers of other brigades and regiments gave way to the enthusiasm of the moment and led their own men forward. Before the movement could be checked from Grant's headquarters the entire Army of the Cumberland was scrambling up the hill in broken detachments, but with unbroken courage. At the first rush the enemy's line was broken in but few places, but in the end Thomas' soldiers captured the entire ridge and turned the Confederate guns upon their former owners, who had stamped to the rear. This blow following upon Hooker's exploit on Lookout mountain, "above the clouds," paralyzed the defenders of Chattanooga. Sherman's capture of Tunnel hill, the last stronghold, was an easy task with Thomas' captured guns raking the enemy's line on his front.

According to General Fullerton, who was on the field as a staff officer to Thomas, Grant was angry when he saw the Army of the Cumberland pushing onward up the ridge. The reason for this anger is made clear by the historian of the Army of the Cumberland, General Cist. He says: "In the general engagement Grant's plan of battle had been for Sherman, with five divisions, to make the main attack, sweep everything before him down the ridge, and when he had the enemy in full retreat the Army of the Cumberland was then to aid in the pursuit after patiently waiting till the fighting was over. Hooker under Grant's original plan was to simply hold Lookout secure, and when the enemy was driven by Sherman he, too, was to join in the pursuit. All the fighting of the battle was to be done by Sherman, and the glory was to be his."

"In Sherman's memoirs we are favored with Grant's views of the Army of the Cumberland when Sherman first reported in person to Grant at Chattanooga to learn his plan and the part he (Sherman) was to take. Sherman says that Grant told him that the men of Thomas' army had been so demoralized by the battle of Chickamauga that he feared they could not be got out of their trenches to assume the offensive and also that the Army of the Cumberland had been so long in the trenches that he wanted my troops to hurry up and take the offensive first, after which he had no doubt the Cumberland army would fight well." So under Grant's plan the Army of the Cumberland was to stand by and be taught a grand object lesson how to fight, as given by Sherman."

Grant's anger is further elucidated by General Fullerton, who says that when Wood and Sheridan were seen going up the ridge Grant said to Thomas, "Who ordered those men up the ridge?"

Thomas answered: "I don't know. I did not."

Grant then turned to Granger, Thomas' chief of staff, and said, "Did you order them up?"

Granger answered: "No, sir. They started up without orders. When those fellows got started all hell can't stop them!"

Grant added something to the effect that if the charge didn't turn out well somebody would suffer. Granger sent Fullerton to the hill to ask Wood and Sheridan if they had ordered the men up. Wood said: "I didn't order them up. They started on their own hook and are going up too. Tell Granger if we are supported we'll take and hold the ridge."

Sheridan answered in much the same words. Wood's men made the same break, and it was claimed, but never proved, that Wood gave the order.

*GEORGE L. KILMER.

SHE COULDN'T SAY IT

(Original.)

Ralford was but forty, and yet he had made a fortune on the stage. It had been a hard struggle for the first ten years, but very easy during the second. Nevertheless he had so often looked forward to a day of rest that now he was independent he resolved to retire.

To his surprise his wife did not share in his enthusiasm over his prospect of rest.

"What does this mean, Ida?" he said. "For years you have been fearing I would break down from overwork, and now that I propose to retire you are dissatisfied. However, your past encouragement and advice have been too much to me to warrant my slighting your opinion. Give me your reasons and if they are convincing I will remain in harness."

But the poor woman could not give her reasons. They were only in her feelings, intuitions, the germs of reasons. So she made no reply, and the great actor, after a dozen or more farewells, gave up his profession. Long Island is a favorite place for actors' country houses, to which they go for rest in the summer, when most of the theaters are closed, and the pair bought a choice spot there overlooking the ocean and built an artistic residence. Here they lived happily from May till November, then went to the city for the winter. For two or three years Ralford enjoyed his rest thoroughly. He did absolutely nothing. Then he began to read. There were thousands of books of which he had never seen the inside, and it seemed to him that he had found paradise. Half a dozen years were spent in this pastime, with occasional trips to the south in winter. Then, having exhausted those subjects in which he naturally took an interest, he concluded to make a tour of the world. His travels kept him amused for several years longer; then, returning to his country seat, he settled down once more to a quiet life.

It was then that his wife first began to see signs of dissatisfaction. He had resolutely kept away from the theater, fearing that its influence upon him would be like that of a glass of liquor to a drunkard. Now, after reading in the newspapers of the stars of the day, some of whom during his prime had been cast in the lowest parts (one or two were supers), he began to get fidgety.

"To think," he exclaimed one morning to his wife, "that Bradburn should be considered a fine actor! In my time he was tried in an absurd play he wrote himself and made an absurd failure."

"Perhaps he was ahead of his time," said the wife demurely.

"Nonsense! He was not born to act and never can act. The stage has degenerated. In those days we had real plays—'London Assurance,' 'She Stoops to Conquer'—and the newer ones were still plays, such as 'The Colleen Bawn' and 'Rosalind.' Now performers are simply shams to attract the crowd."

He fretted and fumed till one day a New York manager, one who was especially given to getting up "shows to attract the crowd," bethought himself that he might turn an honest penny by bringing the famous Ralford back to the stage. He visited the retired actor, now fifteen years older than when he had last trod the boards, and in honeyed words informed him of what Ralford had informed his wife—that the stage was running down and the public longed for a return to better things. Ralford was captured and signed a contract for one night.

For a month before the performance he talked to his wife about how he would show the people the great gap through which they had gradually passed from the old to the new. Ida listened to him, but said nothing. Then he scolded her for her want of sympathy and finally drew tears. Having succeeded in this, he embraced her, gently chiding her for at one time wishing him to remain on the stage and at another opposing his return to it. Since she was no better able to give her reasons than before, she still maintained silence.

The night of the great performance came. Ralford had chosen the play of "Rosalind," in the principal part of which Lester Wallace had been so popular. While Ralford was dressing the manager came to him to say that there would not be a very full house owing to half a dozen incidents which would affect any performance. A slight shock passed over the actor.

Had he been forgotten? Never mind; he would show those who were there what he could do.

When the curtain went up, the seats were but half filled. It nerved the star to action. Into the style to which he had been accustomed he threw an intensity which rendered it more marked even than before, more old fashioned. The audience sat silent as the grave-stones of a cemetery, and before the play was half finished Ralford wished they were grave-stones. In one scene where the hero is awakened by a villain ready to murder him he hoped to retrieve himself by a splendid coolness. He succeeded, but as he would have succeeded fifteen or twenty years before.

"Rats!" cried a voice from the gallery. "You're actin'. Give us the real thing!"

This was too much. Ralford got up and strode into the wings, the curtain was rung down and it was announced that the play would not proceed. The audience would receive their money at the box office. This Ralford took upon himself rather than "go on" again.

"Sweetheart," said the fallen artist to his wife, "why didn't you tell me when I left the stage I would lose the pace of the times and when I returned to it I would be old fashioned?"

"I couldn't say it; I only felt it."

TEAM WORK AMONG SQUIRRELS

What One Is Unable to Carry Others Aid in Getting Away With.

A party of young people who were tenting in a grove near a glen at a Northfield conference witnessed an incident which seems to show a friendly understanding among squirrels. The Deerfield Valley Endeavorer tells the pleasing story.

An out-of-doors dinner had just been finished and the party was still sitting at the table, when a red squirrel, with glistening, eager eyes, came creeping down a tree which stood near the table. He crept nearer and nearer, and finally leaped upon the table.

The lady who was presiding said: "Yes, help yourself to anything you want!"

Upon this invitation the little fellow made bold to creep up to a loaf of bread from which only a slice or two had been cut. He seized it and dragged it to the side of the table, and somehow managed to scramble down the side with it to the ground. He then fixed his teeth in the crust and dragged it away and down the steep sides of the glen.

But when he reached the bottom and confronted the steep rise on the other side it was too much for him. Then he gave a sort of call, which seemed to be understood, for soon squirrels were seen coming from several directions. They crowded round him, and after a little conference all took hold, and with tug and strain they managed to bring the loaf to the top of the hill and disappeared with it in the woods beyond.

A Mutual Friend.

Once upon a time a diplomat was walking with his close friend Decet, who was dressed in his usual attractive manner, when he met a lady acquaintance.

"Allow me to introduce to you my friend Diplomacy," he said.

"It is not necessary," she answered. "He is a close friend of mine, whom I know by the name of Tact."

MARKET TALK IN CHICAGO MARKETS

Latest Gossip from the Wheat Pit in the Windy City at Noon
Today.

Receipts this week so far have fallen short of same period last week about 8,000 head which has helped our market some. Today the choice handy weight cattle sold strong to 10c higher but the heavy kinds and the common medium grades showed no advance. Top at this writing $5.60.

Butcher stuff sold 10c higher and there is yet room for more advance as prices reached a very low level. Now that the westerns are nearly all in we should have a little better show to work off our native stuff at more favorable prices although we believe we will have heavy receipts of this class of stuff for a while yet and we are not sanguine of any great advance. The meat channels are badly congested, owing to the heavy receipts we have had the last two months and that surplus must be worked off before we can expect any marked advance in prices. We believe though that the latter part of the winter we will see a shortage in cattle and with the great demand that has developed and is likely to continue we should have much higher prices. Prospects are bright for those putting cattle on feed to market at that time.

Hogs
Receipts this week have only increased about 11,000 over last week and yet prices have suffered badly, declining this week 25c to 30c up to today but a little reaction was apparent today, most sales being at 6c advance and in many cases 10c advance was scored. Packing grades sold mostly at $4.40 to $4.70, light weights $4.70 to $4.85 and butchers $4.80 to $5.00 with a top as high as $5.10. We are getting prices down now where we should not have as sharp declines as we have had as hogs are nearly worth the money at these prices, but we look for a little further decline and do not expect steady prices until the bulk of the hogs are selling around $4.50.

Sheep
Our receipts in this department have fallen off badly (32,000) this week compared with the same time last week and prices have advanced 30c to 40c since our letter last Wednesday. Today the top lambs sold at $5.75, the same as yesterday, but the bulk sold 10c lower. Sheep sold about steady with yesterday. Feeding lambs are back to the high point of the year and are selling mostly from $4.25 to $4.65. Yours very respectfully,
DANIELS, WELLS & CARPENTER.

To Stop Land Grabbing.

Washington, Nov. 12.—To put an end to public land grabbing is the object of a bill introduced in the senate by Mr. Hansbrough of North Dakota, repealing the timber and stone act under which the public domain, regardless of actual value, has been sold at the uniform price of $2.50 an acre. The bill will, if enacted into law, put an end to speculation in public timber land.

Popular Election Bill.

Washington, Nov. 12.—Again has the movement for the election of United States senators by the direct vote of the people been brought to the attention of congress. In the senate Mr. Mitchell of Oregon introduced the customary measure. It has been before the senate in one form or another repeatedly, but has always failed, although passed by the house.

Old Subject of Argument.

The practice that so many of our children have of studying at home after school hours is not a good one. They need that time for rest and recreation. The body needs educating not less than the brain, and there can be no strong, healthy mental development without a corresponding physical one.—Los Angeles Times.
